June is National Indigenous History Month

National Indigenous History Month is a time for all students and staff to reflect on the history, cultures, contributions, and strengths of First Nations, Inuit, and Metis Peoples. It is an opportunity to create spaces in our classrooms and schools to include cultures and embed relevant resources to include all students so they can see themselves positively represented.

June is Pride Month

Pride month honours past history and future advocacy related to civil rights and gender diversity. It is also an opportunity to celebrate gender identity. In doing so, we can help to create more safe environments for everyone
